Meet Walt Carter:

Walt Carter was born in Florida to a military family. His family moved quite a few times through his childhood and teen years. Walt developed into a talented musician and athlete in multiple sports which led to a Football scholarship into Guilford College where he graduated with a degree in Physics. Walt was commissioned as an officer in the US Air Force and served as a technical officer in the nuclear weapons command and control areas for almost eight years during which he also earned a master's degree in Administration. He now resides in Atlanta GA with his wonderful wife Eileen and they have 4 Adult Children and 1 Grandson.

With the constant moves of his family, Walt was always the new guy wherever they landed. In response to the challenge of being the new kid, he joined in by playing on different sports teams and in bands. These experiences opened the door to his lifelong quest for understanding human potential.

Over the last 36 years, Walt Carter has been running his own private leadership lab while delivering massive change projects for companies and teams. He has served in a variety of technology leadership roles with companies such as Fidelity, Gannett, BDM, TRW, and Ajilon Consulting. He is currently the Chief Digital Officer and CIO for HOMESTAR Financial Corporation and has accomplished many endeavors and surpassed expectations and results for many conglomerate companies over the years. Walt received numerous awards and accolades namely, Walt was named Corporate CIO of the Year in 2014 by the Georgia CIO Leadership Association and most recently named to the Constellation Research Business Transformation 150 list for 2020 for his groundbreaking work at Homestar.

Walt observed that he had a rare and natural knack for helping others as a coach and mentor within the companies he was working with which is the most important key to Walt's many successes as a technology leader. Today, Walt Carter travels the world helping Leaders of Companies of all sizes to understand the potential of their employees and integrate a cultural base to increase their communication, retention, productivity as well as their bottom line.

Despite all his experiences and accolades, Walt Carter remains remarkably humble, authentic and a very engaging speaker.

In a Nutshell, Walt Carter Delivers!

Testimonials for Walt Carter:

"Walt's deep technical knowledge supports his curation of a relevant detail level. His grounded, humorous style of delivery delights audiences. Added stories augment the event experience and weave smoothly into the topic at hand. Walt effortlessly wins over both the packed house and small group alike. If you can bring him into your organization or conference, then you should not hesitate."
